

there are so many ways to communicate.
you do not need access to voip. currently you have access to phone lines and can listen in on what you need. however, there are always ways to get around this. and even more so w/ computers. opening up voip to you is just a way to limit advancement and provide you w/ a flood of information you neither need, should have access to, or will be able to use fully.

please, keep your fingers out
